

Feline Divinity

Logo:

Introduction:

Welcome to Feline Divinity— the ultimate sanctuary for devout believers in the sacred and celestial nature of our feline companions. It is well known that cats have always had symbolic and divine presents throughout human history. Here at Feline Divinity, we appreciate and worship these creatures as the gods that they are. Throughout our website you will find information about the historic divinity of cats, as well as educational resources on how to devote yourself to felines.

About:

At Feline Divinity we aim to better educate both existing believers, and potential ones! We provide information on how to properly care for your cat, how to worship it, and why it is our job to admire our feline friends. We are a family of dedicated worshipers who saw the eternal presence within our own feline companions. Together we united to spread the spiritual values we hold, in hopes of educating non-believers and saving them from a world without pure divinity. All are welcomed at Feline Divinity, join us today!

Research:

Cats have a natural divinity dating back to ancient Egypt! In Egypt, our feline friends were seen as a sign of wisdom and companionship; “The dual nature of cats — protective and nurturing on the one hand, ferocious and aggressive on the other...along with their loyalty and independence, became symbolic representations of Egyptian rulers and gods”. In Egyptian culture it was not uncommon for rich folks, who could afford mummification upon their death, to have their felines mummified alongside them. These cats were valued more than most commoners at the time.

Similarly, Ancient Indian culture values cats much the same. Cats are seen in religious texts, oftentimes assisting humans. In The Mahabharata and The Ramayana, cats are pictured as powerful and benevolent shapeshifters. Similar to Ancient Egyptian culture, cats are often associated with Ancient Indian gods; “The esteem in which cats were held is also evident in the Indian cat goddess, Sastht, who served much the same role as Bastet and was as greatly revered”.

In China and Japan, cats were even seen as appointed overseers, Whose job it was to “oversee the running of their new creation”. Cats are seen as pest control all around the world and in many cultures, however; there is much more to our feline friends. Their importance to ancient cultures around the world seems to all hint at one thing; cats themselves hold divinity.

Images and Videos:

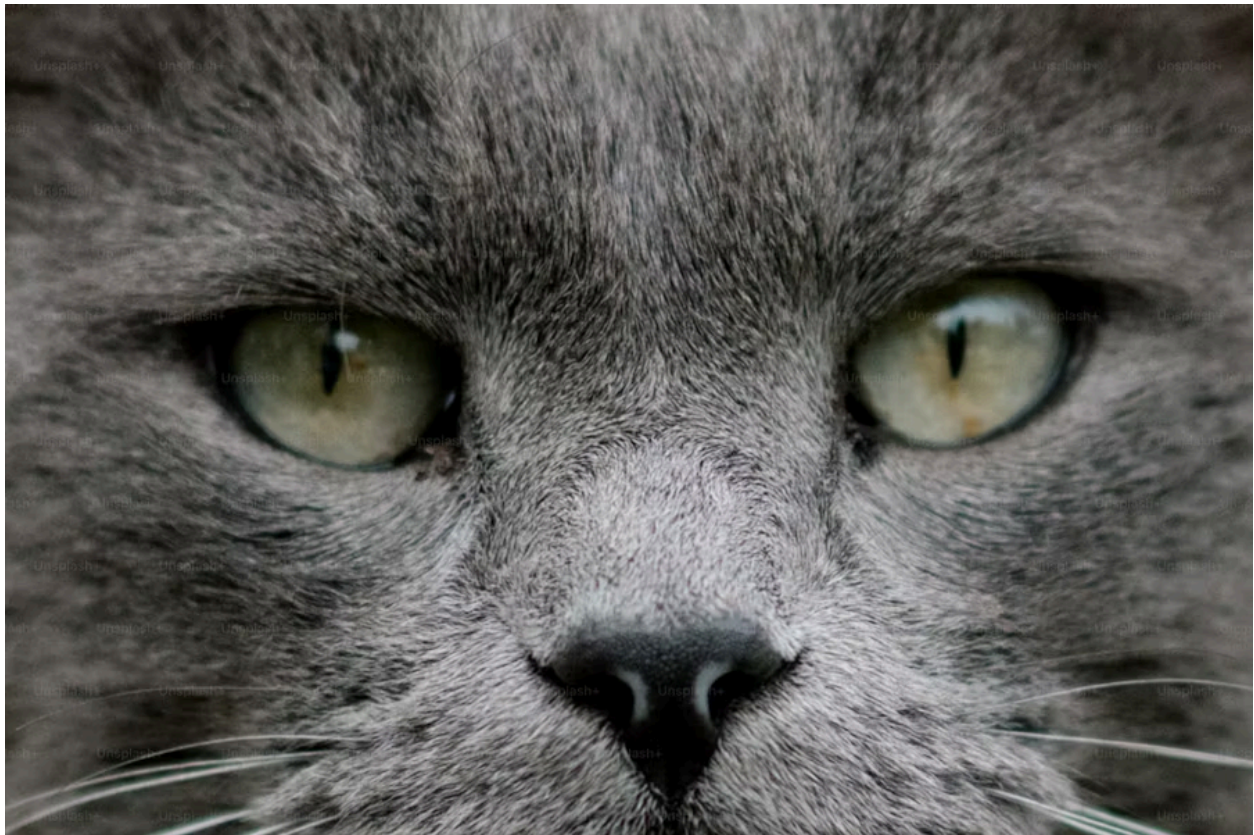

PHOTOS: BROOKLYN MUSEUM

“Divine Felines” reveals how ancient Egyptians viewed the role of cats in religious, social and political life through works such as, from clockwise above: a bronze-and-gold cat’s head.

The Washington Diplomat

World History

Unsplash

Video

Products offered by this website are a collection of Feline Divinity approved cat toys, products, care items, a membership plan that offers discounts on all of these products.

Conclusion:

Join us today at FelineDivinity.com and become part of a loving community dedicated to the worship and adoration of our feline companions. Whether you're a seasoned believer seeking deeper spiritual connection or a curious soul eager to learn, our sanctuary offers a wealth of resources and guidance. Embrace the divine presence within your own whiskered companion and discover the profound joy of living in harmony with the sacred feline essence. Together, let's elevate the world's understanding of cat divinity. Join us on this enchanting journey - for the love of cats, and the reverence they inspire, awaits.